SIGGI BRYNJARSSON

TIPS AND TRICKS FOR WATERFALLS

© SIGGI BRYNJARSSON

Based in Iceland, Sigurdur William Brynjarsson (Siggi) is a photographer who has led local and international photography workshops and tours since 2012. His dedication to teaching is evident and he shares his extensive knowledge with his students in the field. They always come back with rave reviews and often join him for future workshops.

As owner and CEO of Viking International PhotoTours, a multi-national company registered in Iceland and in the US (Nashville, Tennessee), Siggi leads photo tours and workshops in picturesque locations around the globe. He is both an American and an Icelandic citizen and is primarily based in Iceland, but calls Franklin home as well.

Siggi is currently the brand ambassador for Skylum software, NiSi Filters, Irix lenses and Vallerret Photography Gloves. He has also won multiple local and international awards for his work, most notably for his Aurora Borealis photos. His passion lies in capturing the magic of the Northern Lights and has even written a book on the subject (unfortunately, available only in Iceland at this time). His book and a series of postcards can be found in souvenir shops and hotels throughout Iceland.
